

Faith event focuses on fathers

The Durham News, Wednesday, February 1, 2012

The Early Childhood Faith Initiative will present a lunch and learn, "Getting Fathers Involved with Young Children," from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 7, at Covenant Presbyterian Church, 2620 Weaver St.

Jeff Quinn from Duke's Center for Child and Family Policy will discuss the importance of father involvement in early development and share suggestions on how fathers can get involved in children's lives.

A panel of ministers will make suggestions about how congregations can help fathers get involved as well as their own personal experiences as fathers.

Participants should bring lunch; drinks are provide. Registration can be made by contacting Winnie Morgan at winniewmorgan@juno.com or calling 732-1524.

This session is free and open to the public and sponsored by Durham's Partnership fore Children and End Poverty Durham.
